

Dr. Haydée Cuza (She/Her)

Strategist working with a foundational understanding that systems of economic oppression and racism impact our day-to-day experiences and expectations. Working with the knowledge and empathy cultivated through working class economics, childhood poverty, young parenthood, personal traumas and triumphs, and decades of learning, growing, stumbling and thriving as an executive director, associate and program director, researcher, author, bookkeeper, student, and consultant.