

Haseeb Wardak is a recent graduate from the University of California, Davis from which he received his Bachelor's degree in Global Disease Biology and minor in Public Health. He currently works as a Public Health Ambassador for UC Davis helping both the school and city keep COVID-19 transmission rates under control. He is a pre-Physician Assistant student who hopes to focus and contribute his time and effort to the uninsured, underrepresented, and underserved community. Outside of school, Haseeb enjoys cooking, volunteering, spending time with family/friends, and working out.
